

FOUNDATION

The bed is the foundation of our waking lives.

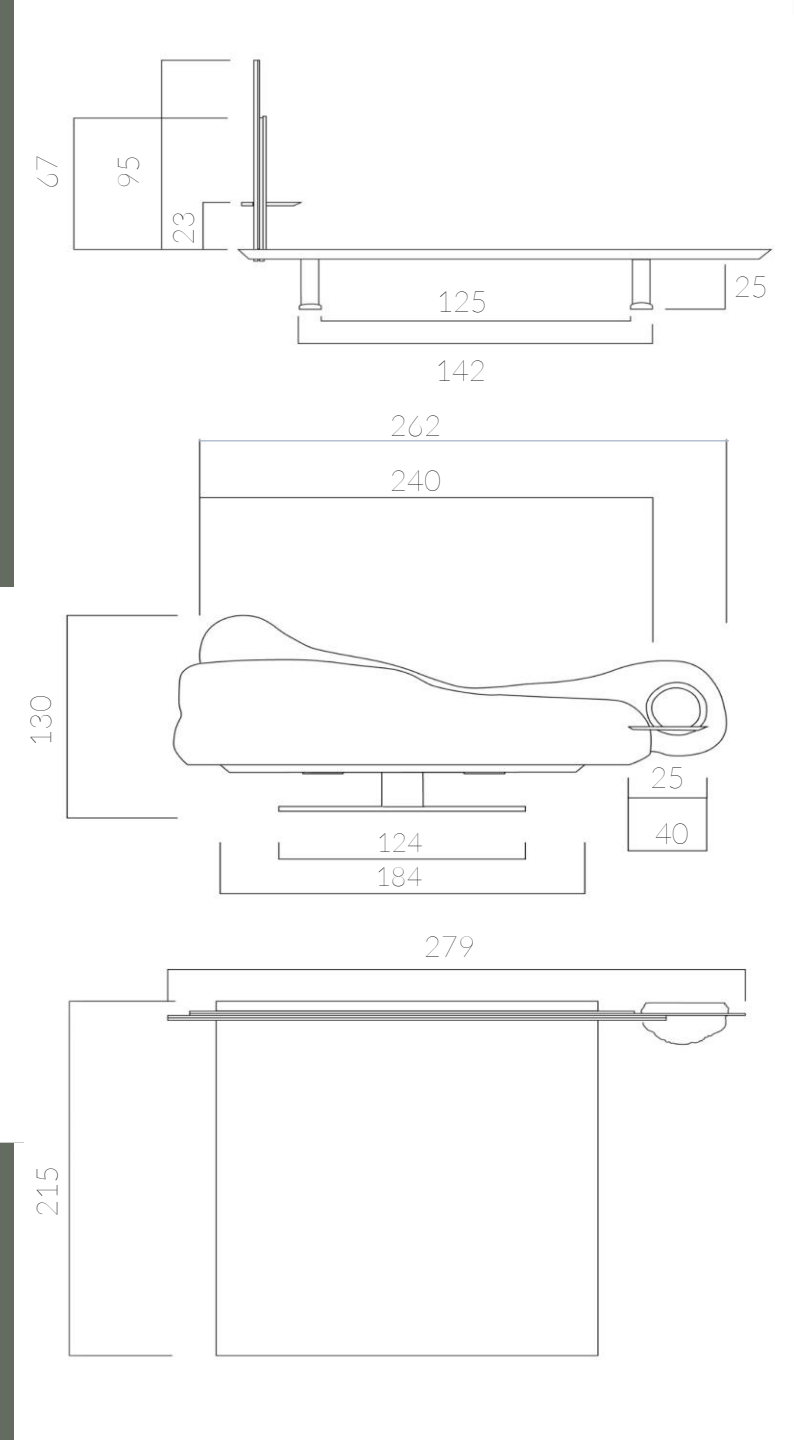

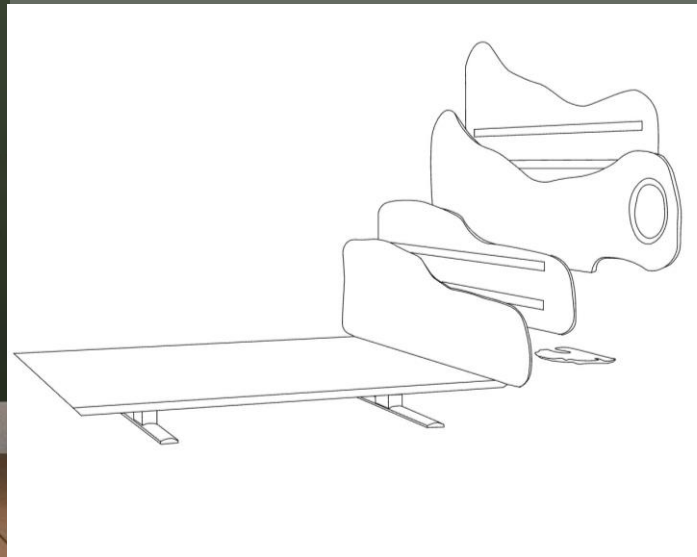

It is the place for security, comfort, and helps us build our routines amidst chaos. It aids us in our preparation to face the world and to recover from it. This is meant to be the building point of the day.

While designing this bed, the layering and coloration found in the foundation of stone of our world inspired a material. The headboard is sintered stone from Neolith, a composite material that can bring the elegance and beauty of stone floating atop a plywood base, in a myriad of finishes and textures, without the weight of natural stone.

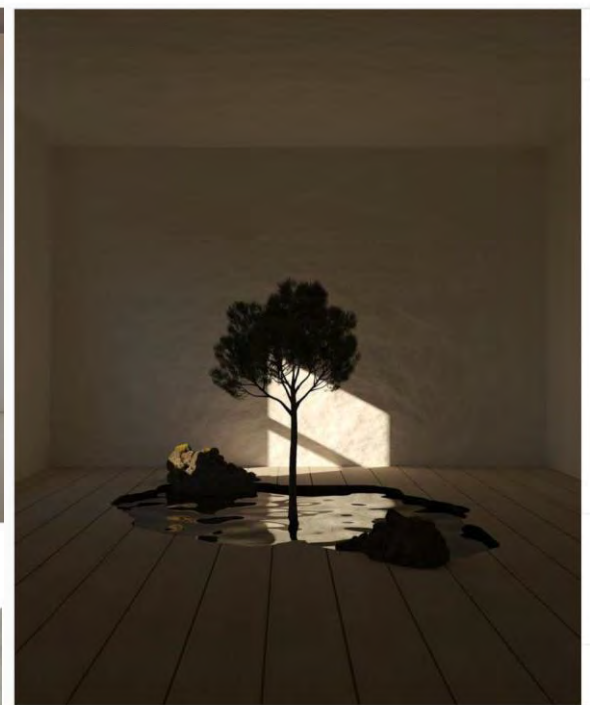

Finding softness and safety in stone and wood brings us to the roots of the human's material culture.. It is in the foundation of these two materials that we have grown so far.
